Next-Generation Federated Search

Researchers and experts demand easy access to their important information sources. Now more than ever, it's critical to provide immediate access to the very best information. Deep Web Technologies' integrated federated search is the future of search: It enables organizations to provide one interface – one search – for its users to access all their information sources. Achieve superior results through a powerful ranking engine, incremental results for faster response times, scalability and flexibility.

Robust Web Services-Based API

Deep Web Technologies' platform is designed around open-systems. Regardless of what technology you provide to your clients, our technology can plug-in, providing powerful features through a robust set of Web Services-based APIs. These APIs, web 2.0 capable, enable you to quickly integrate federated search into your offering, creating a more desirable, capable and strategic platform for your clients.

Centralized Administration, Reports and Statistics

Our administration takes the difficulty out of managing Deep Web Technologies' offerings, as well as greatly simplifies implementation and issue handling. Furthermore, our reports and statistics help you assess your client's activity and help your clients assess their information sources, identifying the most valuable, the most problematic and the least used.

Flexible Deployments

We're flexible, and deliver around you or your clients' needs. Our products can sit in our data center or yours. We can license our technology so it can sit behind your client's firewall, or offer it as a Software-as-a-Service (SaaS). We can manage any and all aspects of the implementation, in a manner that fits your or your client's needs.

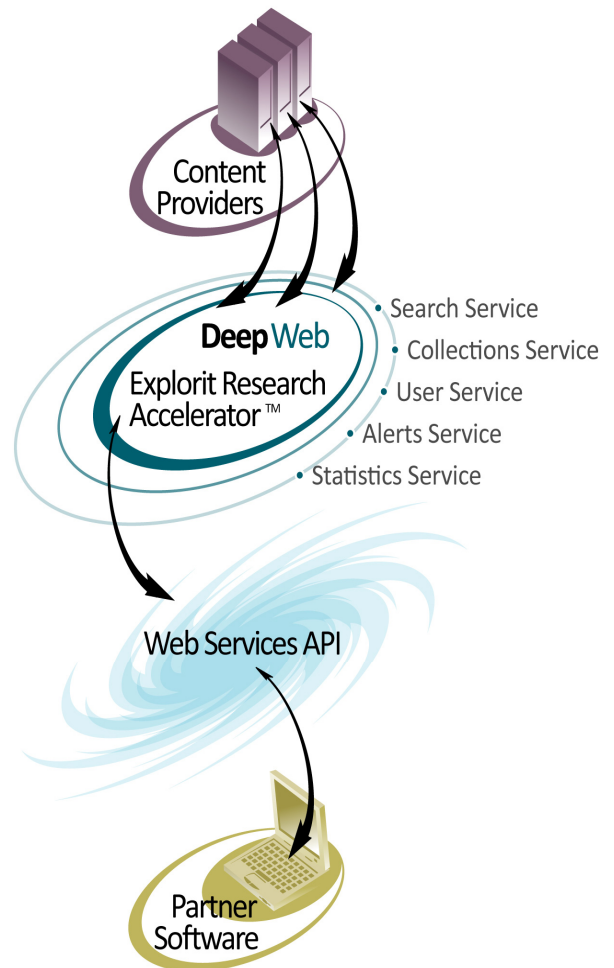

Outstanding Support and Customer Service

We offer the fastest response times in the industry. When a particular information source stops working, we often recognize the problem and fix it before our clients know. We can provide first-level or second-level support, depending on the particular needs of your business.

Flexible Financial Incentives and Options

After all, it's about your business. Whether you're interested in flat-rate or tiered pricing, revenue sharing or another other business model, Deep Web Technologies will custom-tailor a particular partnership agreement to best meet the needs of your business.
